PLANNED ROBBERY OF WEALTHY WIDOW

One of the Band of Youthful Gangsters
Confesses of Plot to New York
Police Inspector

(Special to The Herald)

New York, Sept. 9.—Owen Talls, a foodman in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Griggs Nichols, after an all night grilling by Inspector Barrett, today confessed that he and a band of youthful gangsters planned the robbery of the wealthy widow and named the men who plotted Mrs. Nichols to death. This announcement was made by the inspector this morning and it was said the police were in possession of sufficient information to enable them to round up the band. Inspector Barrett said the men planned to overpower Mrs. Nichols in order to get a strong box in which they supposed she kept $500,000. The inspector said that Talls gave him the names of the youths involved in the alleged confession and told him addresses and descriptions of places where they might be found. Detectives were sent out in search.

Part of the confessions of the foodman, Owen Talls, given out today was to the effect that one of the three robbers was Arthur Walters, a Finn whose real name is Waldenman, who was discharged as second butler by Mrs.

ADMINISTRATION IS MUCH TROUBLED

The Reports on the Sinking of the Steamship Arabic Differ and the Administration is More Troubled
Than It Cares to Admit

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, Sept. 9.—While waiting for the arrival of the German report on the Arabic disaster, Secretary Lansing today directed the affidavits collected by Ambassador Page from British and American sources, dealing with the sinking of the big liner. The administration is much more troubled over the outlook than it cares to admit. Despite the "comforting assurance" from Berlin that the reply carries the complete text of the orders giving the submarine commanders directing them not to attack merchantmen without warning. The reason for this government's embarrassment is the determination originally arrived at by the President and communicated to Ambassador von Bernstorff, by Secretary Lansing that if a submarine sunk the Arabic without warning the United States would demand that its commander be punished. The commander has justified his action by declaring he was certain that the liner had altered her course to ram him and that because of this he submerged his craft and torpedoed the liner. All of the affidavits considered by Secretary Lansing took the position that no attempt was made by Captain Fitch to ram the submarine.

GEN. VILLA REPORTED AS BADLY BEATEN

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, Sept. 9.—Official circles today saw in the reported crushing defeat of Villa in Coahuila his elimination as a factor in the administration's peace plan. Villa had let it be known that he intended making one final effort to demonstrate his control of the states bordering on Chihuahua. Instead of succeeding he has been badly beaten. Reports from the American consular representatives indicate that he has lost a good part of his artillery.

RED AMES LOOKS GOOD AS CARD;
OLD JINX SEEMS TO HAVE DEPARTED

RED AMES

St. Louis, Sept. 9.—Red Ames, once on the payroll of the New York Giants and until recently enlisted under the banner of Charley Herzog, and his Cincinnati Reds, seems to have taken on a new lease of life with Miller Huggan and looks for all the world like a real classy twirler. Ames was known as Kahamy Ames while he was with the Giants because of his unfortunate faculty of losing consistently, even though he pitched top-notch balls and held his opponents to few hits and fewer runs. The jinx quit him for a while in Cincinnati, but during his last days this was very much to the fore, so Herzog sold him to the Cardinals, with the hope that the change of scene would help the red-throated leopardsman, and apparently it has, for in his last starts, Ames has twirled winning balls.

MARATHON RACE
HAMPTON CARNIVAL

The third day of the Hampton Beach Carnival attracted one of the largest crowds of the week at that resort on Wednesday and a very interesting program was carried out. At 1:30 there was a Fraternal order parade.

Particular interest however centered in the marathon race, the start being made here from Market Square at 1:15 with twelve contestants.

The run was over a 14-mile course through Portsmouth, Rye Beach, North Hampton, Hampton to the beach, the finish being in front of the Casino. The first to finish was L. Davis of the Bannan A. The hero of the hour was 12 year old Evan Day of Sharon, Mass., who went over the course in 1h 44 m, finishing in fourth place. As there was only three prizes a popular subscription was taken for the young lad and he will be presented with a cup to the value of $25. Tony Liberty of Haverhill, Ireland Smart and Pat Woods of Portsmouth also finished.

The officials of the course were Frank R. Cadham of Haverhill, clerk of course, James Hallahan of Concord, William E. Woods of Portsmouth, William E. Woods of Bridgeport, Joseph Santana of Bridgeport, Thers, George Tilton of Haverhill and Rev. E. J. Scott of Exeter judges at finish.

The sports were warmly contested especially the 440 yard dash which was won by Mowe, captain of the Dorchester high track team in fast time.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The following prices f.o.b. Detroit, effective Aug. 2, 1915:

Ford Runabout $380.00
Ford Touring Car 440.00
Ford Town Car 640.00

No speedometer included in this year's equipment, otherwise cars fully equipped

There can be no assurance given against an advance in these prices at any time. We guarantee, however, that there will be no reduction in these prices prior to Aug. 1, 1916.

Profit-Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914, we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between August 1, 1914, and August 1, 1915, we would share profits with the retail purchasers, to the extent of from $10 to $50 on each car. We have now sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-1915 has been most successful. We do roughly believe in it, but realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date. We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September and October, 1915.

FIRST ANNUAL FAIR CLOSED LAST EVENING

Horse Show Divided Attention With Children's Events of Last Day.—H. F. Yeaton Injured in Race.

The First Annual Portsmouth Fair, under the auspices of the Southern New Hampshire Agricultural Association, was brought to a close late yesterday afternoon, the third and last day being Children's Day. There is no light to look at the big event in without realizing that it was a grand success. If the fair has brought the attention of one person to the realization that this vicinity is a fine agricultural territory, and it is safe to say that this has been done, the officers and directors—and the members also—of the association have accomplished a big work.

The day opened with the work of the children in the improvised playground built by George McPheters, Supervisor of the Portsmouth Play Grounds, the day being in the hands of a committee composed of John K. Bates, D. F. Borthwick and G. Ralph Loughton. Associated with this committee was the Rev. Mr. Barker and Donald W. McNicol, secretary of the Portsmouth Y. M. C. A., all deserving of great credit for the fine way the events were carried out.

The five hundred and more little ones left the square in charge of Mr. McPheters, assisted by John Down, assistant Supervisor, and assistant Supervisor Edith Gibson.

C. T. Conlon of Hyde Park, Mass., secretary of the Norfolk County Y. M. C. A., gave an address to the parents and children on the value of organized play in the afternoon. Mr. Conlon's address was very interesting and was appreciated by all.

Flowers, Fruit and Vegetables.
In the morning blue ribbons were awarded to the following exhibitors of flowers, fruits and vegetables: D. F. Borthwick, G. Ralph Loughton, Harry Boynton, William H. Howard, C. W. Gray, C. S. Hayes, C. H. Hayes, Leona Hayes, Eugene Flynn, Oscar Aitch, Mr. Kelling, George D. Rogers and Fred C. Henderson.
The entire fruit, flower and vegetable display of Winthrop Grange of Stratham, D. F. Borthwick and G. Ralph Loughton of this city were given in the Portsmouth hospital.

Blue ribbons and cash premiums were awarded to all flower exhibitors.

The Cattle Parade

At 12 o'clock all the cattle exhibited at the fair were paraded around the race track, headed by the band. This feature attracted a great deal of attention and was greatly appreciated. Over 200 cattle were in line.

The Suffrage Tent.

At the Suffrage headquarters the work was under the supervision of Miss Ida Montgomery, who was assisted by the Misses Lynn and Miss Sykes.

Horse Show

In the inner ring during the afternoon some fine horses were exhibited. There were seven classes, driving, riding and hunting stock and it is safe to say that few fairs in New England this season will be able to gather a better lot of horse flesh. The horse show was conducted by the committee with W. A. Bragdon, chairman, and D. F. Borthwick, director. Herbert Brown, one of the best judges of horses in the east, acted as judge, assisted by Dr. Inglis.

The awards were made as follows:

Races

Three classes were started in the afternoon and all were won in straight heats. In the 225 trot, Guyhurst took first money; Tom Crocker, second; Blawfelt third and Sparrow, fourth. Six horses were entered in this class.

Lady McGuire finishing fifth and Baron Lin getting last place in each heat. In the special races Don Cecellian had an easy time getting the three heats, the fastest mile being run in 2.24. Four were entered in this class and finished in this order, Cresco, second; George Armont third and Oscar V. M. fourth. This was perhaps the most interesting race as all three of the heats were started with the four horses in line. With the exception of the third heat the horses strung out in line in the order in which they finished for nearly the entire distance, when they swung into the stretch and came down almost abreast, when Don Cecellian easily pulled ahead of the bunch.

The Free for All, about which was centered the most interest as several of the horses entered had met on Monday, was marred by a serious accident resulting in the injury of Bert Yeaton, driver of Bramham Boughman and the breaking of a leg of the horse, Silver Heels, necessitating having the fine animal shot. Silver Heels was valued by his owner, Leo Cavanaugh of Manchester, at $5,000. Mr. Yeaton sustained a broken collar bone, a fractured wrist, most of his teeth knocked out and severe bruises on his head and face, Silver Heels running over and stepping on him.

The accident occurred in the first heat of the race at the first turn after the horses had been given the word to "Go" by the starter. Birdie Mayo was acting bad and her driver, Peter Carney pulled her up, causing her to turn to the right against the fence. Bramham Boughman was thrown from his stride, stumbled and threw Yeaton on to the track. Silver Heels, coming up behind, crashed into the fallen horse and ran over Yeaton as he lay on the track. Silver Heels was thrown, breaking his right fore leg. Bramham Boughman tore loose from the sulky and continued around the track at a dead run, leading the field, making what was probably the best time the Portsmouth track had ever been run over. He made four complete circuits of the track, more than a score of men attempting to stop him. He was finally brought to a stand when J. Perley Putnam of York acting as starter, realized that he was a well trained horse, rang the bell repeatedly as the frightened animal crossed under the wire for the fourth time. When he came to the turn on his fifth time round he slowed down and permitted himself to be led back to the stables.

Silver Heels was taken from the track in a wagon and later shot. Mr. Yeaton was attended by Dr. Higgins and was later sent to his home in Dover. Silver Heels was a chestnut gelding, sired by Alice out of Maude Lambert and was a fine animal. The race was won by The Ideal Lady in straight heats, Ellen Brown second and Kandy Onval third.

Time, 2:20; 2:19; 2:22.

After the last scheduled race, Don Cecellian, one of the best horses entered in the Special Class was sent a mile against time. He was driven by Lincoln Hall, in an effort to lower the track record for a half mile, time to be taken on the second lap. Charles E. Hoffenger, mounted on Meteor, picked up the trotter on the second lap to pace and encourage him. Don Cecellian made the second half mile in 1:03 3-4 falling in his object although he made a fine showing. The best time was made on July 5 by Ralph Patch, one of the Walter Cox string.

Mr. Gannon's third ascension in his balloon was as fine as any that he had made during the week. On account of a slight delay in the firing of the gun as a signal to make his first drop, he made a much higher ascension than he had on Monday and Tuesday. The ascension was well worth waiting for and most of the big crowd remained until the last.

One of the sights was the unrelenting of the children from the gate to the cars at the corner of the Greenland road and Sherburne road. A great many paid high compliments to George McPheters and his assistants for the manner in which the little ones were taken care of during the day.

NOTES OF THE FAIR

Several people are asking who put all the ice in Gus Coughlin's shoes. Gus promised to go up in the balloon in place of Mr. Gannon on Wednesday. After the event had been announced, Gus evidently suffered a severe attack of frost in his pedal extremities and the regular man had to earn his own money.

The Portsmouth Fair, owing probably to the foresight of the officers of the association, was particularly free from the usual run of crooks that follow the county fairs.

The police officers and attendants at the gate were kept busy most of the time. Their work was commendable in the fact that there were no collisions among the large number of autos and wagons that passed through the gates.

It was suggested that if the Portsmouth Electric railroad had run a spur track down Sherburne road some of the bus wagons would have been out of luck.

The kids will be talking about Wednesday at the fair until it is time for Santa Claus to make his next trip. Mr. Louis C. Deane intended to exhibit the Noone cup, awarded him for the best cow in the cattle show. It will probably be placed in one of the windows of the store of N. H. Deane.

Joe Jeannette retires

Joe Jeannette the negro heavyweight has decided to retire.

"Willard has drawn the color line, and that about let's me out," said Jeannette. "There is no one for me to fight any more and so I have quit the ring game for good."

Jeannette is running a line of "Jitney" autos in Holoken, N. J., and is said to be doing well.

Mrs. C. Ellsworth Hodgson and family of Austin street have returned to their home after spending the summer months at Alton Bay.

FOREST FUNDS FOR ALL STATES

Washington, Sept. 8.—Appropriation of more than $50,000 from national forest receipts during the fiscal year 1915 among the states in which the forests lie is announced by the Secretary of the Treasury. Gross receipts of the service were $2,181,490, and under the law 25 per cent of this goes to the states for county schools and roads purposes and an additional 10 per cent is made available for expenditures by the secretary of agriculture in building roads and trails for the benefit of local communities. Montana gets the largest share, forests within her borders having contributed $218,000 to the total receipts. Of this Montana received $79,550 for roads and schools, and $31,855 will be spent in the state by the Department of Agriculture. In the National Forest purchase areas in the east a total of $3977 was collected in Georgia, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. These states thereby sharing $901 and $397. Since the law under which a portion of the receipts is turned over to the states was enacted in 1906, the total has aggregated nearly $4,500,000, including this year's allotment.

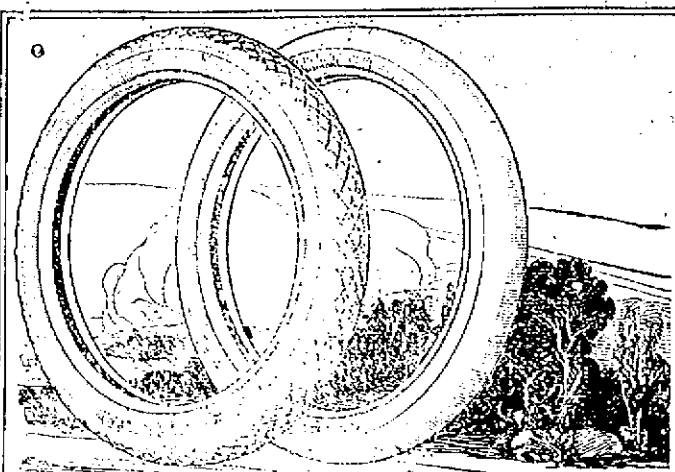

Trade Journals Oppose Postal Plan

The recommendation of Postmaster General Burleson that the rates of postage on magazines issued less frequently than once a week be increased was opposed by speakers at the tenth convention of the Federation of Trade Press Associations which opened at Philadelphia yesterday. John Clyde Osborn, president of the association, said it was unfair to judge the character of a publication simply by its form and appearance. A committee was appointed to show Congress how much trade journals contribute to the annual income of the Postoffice Department, and their educational value, and to point out to the Postmaster General the unfairness of his recommendation.

Small-Size Tires Enlarged 20%

Sizes 30x3 1/2 and 30x3

Goodyear tires won top place by giving more than others. For that reason alone these tires for years have outsold any rival.

This year we are giving to users of small tires three more costly extras. Now Goodyear tires in these sizes, more than ever before, excel any like-size tire.

3 More Extras

We have added 20 per cent to the air capacity. Added size, as you know, adds mileage.

We have added 30 per cent more rubber to the side walls—to the part above the rim. That's where constant bending breaks a thin-walled tire.

We have made new molds of a new design which adds endurance, we have found.

Lower Prices

These new extras alone, on this year's output, will cost $317,000. They will save our users ten times that, perhaps.

Yet this year we made another big price reduction. It was our third in two years, totaling 45 per cent. That's one result of mammoth output—a value no one else can give.

Even in size 30x3, in Goodyears, you get a four-ply tire. In our All-Weather tread, you get a double-thick anti-skid. Now you get this extra size and extra strength. More than ever you owe yourself the use of Goodyear tires. No other make compares with them in low average cost per mile. A half-million users have proved that.

School Children Can't Afford Handicaps

In a remarkable test, recently made under the supervision of the State Board of Health of Minnesota, over 9,000 school children were questioned as to what they ate for breakfast.

A large percentage of the breakfasts consisted of coffee, bread and butter; coffee and oatmeal or some other cereal; coffee and hotcakes; coffee and biscuits; coffee and coffee cake, or coffee alone. Probably the same conditions prevail everywhere throughout the country.

"IS IT ANY WONDER," SAYS THE EXAMINING PHYSICIAN,
"THAT 23 PER CENT OF THESE CHILDREN HAVE FRE-QUENT HEADACHES?"

He was thinking of the chief cause—coffee. And it IS no wonder when we consider that coffee contains the powerful drug, caffeine, a nerve poison and notorious cause of headaches, heart trouble, sleeplessness, irritation, and other ills!

Parents often wonder why their children are sickly, dull and backward in school, when frequently the cause lies in the homely, accepted habit of giving them a beverage containing an insidious poison.

When scientists and Boards of Health everywhere are speaking out against the dietetic dangers to which children have been so long subjected, it is high time that parents take heed and correct these conditions. No child should be permitted to use coffee. It is easy to furnish them instead the pleasant, pure food-drink—

Instant Postum

Made from wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses, Postum contains the goodness of the grain and is a most delicious beverage, economical, convenient and free from coffee drugs or any other harmful substance.

Postum comes in two forms: The original Postum Cereal, which has to be boiled; Instant Postum—soluble—made in the cup with hot water—instantly. They are equally delicious, and the cost per cup is about the same for both kinds.

Minimum Wage Laws.

Laws fixing a minimum wage for women and minors are in force in a number of states, and similar legislation is being considered by other states, among them New York and Massachusetts. The plan contemplated in New York is to fix a minimum wage and to allow such persons as would be thrown out of employment because their services would not be worth the amount fixed by law to work under "special licenses," while in Massachusetts there would be different rates of minimum wages, according to the age and experience of the workers affected by the law.

One of the leading New York papers thinks the plan suggested in that state rather flimsy and that the proposed law, if enacted, would result in little practical benefit to anybody. The committee behind this movement, the paper says, "concedes that such legislative action may force out of employment all those who are regarded by employers as not worth the minimum wage. But it is urged that these 'inefficients' could be provided for by a system of 'special licenses' permitting the payment to them of lower wages."

Apparently that would leave the matter practically just where it is now. There would be a minimum wage for those capable of earning it, with lower wages for others, and it is difficult to understand why under such a system things would not go on pretty much as they do now, the wages of employees being fixed according to their capacity.

And it is a question whether that is not the proper basis for the adjustment of wages. If the law is to step in and fix the rate of wages, why may it not with equal propriety name the prices of commodities? That is a question that is being asked in many quarters, and it is one that should be answered before the law makers go too far along the paternal and arbitrary line of telling employers what they shall pay their help.

Anything of this sort does not come properly under the head of business regulation. There are certain broad fields in which government can properly act for the protection of the public, but when it steps in to regulate wages it is a different matter entirely, and it is to be feared that in the long run the results will prove unsatisfactory. There is more danger of too much government than too little, and the passage of minimum wage laws is a striking evidence of this fact. The people are entitled to a certain amount of letting alone and the government should see that they get it.

The New York municipal employment bureau reports that there are 10,000 good farm hands in that city looking for work. It is evident that they want it badly. New York city is just the place to look for a job on a farm. And the men who are doing this may be trusted to be in line when the soup houses are opened next winter.

Hay fever is cutting its usual swath this year, being a little more prevalent than common if anything. The victims who can afford to do so are huddling in the sections that afford immunity or some degree of alleviation, while the other unfortunates are attending to business as best they can between sneezes.

The czar has assumed command of the Russian armies, and simultaneously it is proclaimed that Russia is in a position to continue the war ten years if necessary. But, happily, while the end of the war is not yet in sight, there is no reason to believe that it will last ten years.

The state forester of Massachusetts says there are more than a million acres of waste land in that state. But perhaps this includes a good many acres that are supposed to be under cultivation. There is more or less such land in Massachusetts and other eastern states.

Charles Sumner Bird of Massachusetts has interested himself in a fish market in Boston and in this venture the people of the state, irrespective of party, wish him better success than he had in running for governor two years on the progressive ticket.

Prohibition surely has its "antis." Congressman Gallivan says it is "un-American, unjust, inhuman and crazy," and a prominent labor union man pronounces it as "making for panic, wage reduction, hypocrisy, crime and demoralization."

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey gives the eight-hour day a boost by extending it to its 25,000 employees. But if the eight-hour day ever reaches the firm it will make the present cost of living look like the proverbial thirty cents.

The Spanish war veterans also stand by the president and for a bigger army and navy. This makes it well nigh unanimous.

China is ordering submarines, and yet there are those who think that country is in need of missions.

MRS. MOHR PERSISTS IN DENYING SHE HIRED NEGROES TO MURDER HUSBAND.

WIFE AND NEGROES HELD FOR DOCTOR'S MURDER.

In the accompanying illustration are shown Mrs. Franklin Mohr and the three negroes she is charged with hiring to murder her husband. The case is a most sensational one. The negroes, George W. Heals, Cecil Victor Brown and Henry Spellman, told the police they were acting under instructions from Mrs. Mohr when Heals, the doctor's chauffeur, stopped his touring car in a lonely spot on the road to Newport and Haverford and the fatal shots at the doctor and Spellman fired two bullets, wounding Miss Emily C. Burger, the doctor's pretty private secretary. Spellman is shown in the upper left, George W. Heals lower left of the picture, Brown is shown in the center.

WILL ASHER HINDS RUN?

This Is the Question York County Republicans Are Asking Themselves.

There will be something doing in Republican circles in old York county Saturday next when Hon. Horace Mitchell entertains at Kittery Point prominent Republicans, members of town committees and others. The men will be that, customary at the great old fashioned banquet and no doubt the central topic of afternoon conversation and speech will be Mr. Mitchell's candidacy for Republican congressional nomination in the First Maine district.

Now just what the York county politicians know of Mr. Hinds' intentions beyond the letter which he wrote announcing his candidacy, is of course, a matter of conjecture. This, however, is known, that on a very previous occasion, Mr. Hinds entered the race with the distinct understanding that there should be no avowed candidate against him.

The question naturally arises, have conditions changed so that Mr. Hinds, despite the fact of Mr. Mitchell's avowed candidacy, will continue in the race, or will he in view of his continued impaired physical condition, seek retirement. It is well known that York county has dominated some of Mr. Hinds' closest political supporters and why they are now getting ready to rally about the banner of one of their chosen sons is not easily explained unless in anticipation of Hinds' withdrawal.

This activity among the Republicans in York is causing some of the political observers in Cumberland county to do a little quiet thinking, for it is well known that there are at least two Republicans who in the past had political aspirations and it is believed the bee is still buzzing about their political bonnet.

In this very connection the names of

Hon. Richard Wells and Hon. E. C. Reynolds are to be mentioned and some of their earnest friends are not a little surprised that they are letting the very grass grow under their feet instead of coming right out into the open and announcing their intentions. Rumor has it that in the event of Mr. Hinds' retirement, a strong effort will be made by his closest advisers to induce Wilford G. Chapman, Esq., to enter the race. It is urged that Mr. Chapman's splendid fight for Mayor of Portland a few years ago and his unvarying loyalty through thick and thin to Hinds' interests would make him a most desirable candidate and one about whom the "old Hinds guard" would gather with the greatest relish conceivably.

PEOPLES' OPINION

[More From "Mechanic".]

I have read with much interest the various criticisms on my article regarding a relief air valve on the suction pipe of the local handpump. The writers evidently know nothing about the theory and practice of hydraulics. It is an established fact that air in a pipe of water under pressure will form a water vapor and that when the stream issues from the pipe, the air will free itself in the atmosphere, breaking up the stream and multiplying the efforts of the men on the brakes. I have worked for many years on pumps, and for several years worked for the Lockwood Machine Co. of Elmira, N. Y., where some of the best handpumps in the country have been built, and therefore know what I am talking about.

If the Franklin Pierce Company so desire, I will without any cost to them, as I am at present employed at the navy yard, attach my improvement to the suction hose, and all I ask is that they assemble some evening and give it a try-out and be convinced. I have the greatest confidence that with my ideas the stream will be thrown another third farther.

"STANDING PAT"

The business that "stands pat" moves backwards. It is the progressives who expand, when markets, build extensions, and add to the bank balances. It is the seeker after new ideas who wins the commercial battle. It is the man who goes after business who gets it. And the list of the live ones make up the list of newspaper advertisers in this country. The names of some of these can be seen each day in the advertising columns of this newspaper.

DR. COWLES ISSUES A STATEMENT

Says the Cowles Children Will Be Brought to His Residence on Middle Street.

The following letter from Dr. Edward S. Cowles is self explanatory: Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 5, 1915.

My dear Mr. Editor: So many misleading statements have appeared in the press in regard to the illness of my children that I feel sure you will be glad to extend to me the courtesy of a correct statement of the facts.

I am distressed to feel that Mrs. Cowles could not get her freedom and be satisfied without a continuous stream of publicity which must necessarily reflect seriously upon her sense of the fitness of things and upon her children. Out of the whole blue months of the unfortunate affair this is the first statement that has appeared either from me or from my lawyers. Her many savage attacks upon me were answered in the courts mainly in the interest of the children. I was glad to give Mrs. Cowles her divorce when I could be assured of safeguarding the interests of the children. In spite of the hard talk, does it not seem strange that the court in its wise discretion has seen fit to give the two little girls back into the same influence which Mrs. Cowles claimed had so outraged her.

On Friday I learned that the children were sick and ordered that two Boston physicians should see them. These physicians learned that the children had scarlet fever and immediately brought the matter to the attention of the Board of Health of West Medway where the children were living in a boarding house. The Board of Health went to the house with my two physicians, saw the children, pronounced their cases to be scarlet fever and put them in quarantine. They had been suffering from scarlet fever for three weeks before the Board of Health was notified.

While ill with scarlet fever, the children had been allowed to associate freely with other children, to play out of doors and expose themselves to dampness, and to ride in public conveyances. Dr. C. Morton Smith had seen the children in his office on Aug. 23d and had allowed them to return to West Medway in the train. And Mrs. Cowles and her mother in Portsmouth nearly a week with never a word as to the illness of the children. The West Medway Board of Health was naturally incensed at being deceived as to the condition of the children and there whereabouts, thus subjecting the other children of the town to the risk of an epidemic of scarlet fever. The physician to the town Board of Health, notified me when I

CURRENT OPINION

Rank in College Is Generally Reproduced in After Life.

Our arrangements are made for the average member of the class, with special effort for those at the lower end. The best members are supposed to be able to shift for themselves. The bright youth can pass examinations and fritter away half his time. But to make himself the leader which he was cut out to be much more than this is necessary.

A democracy, above all other forms of government, needs great leaders, and many a statistical inquiry shows that rank in college is generally reproduced in after life.

We must maintain our respect for the plodding and faithful student who always does his best.

But we must pity his fellow, who, finding tasks easy and requirements readily met, squanders his time and talents and comes out not half the man he was capable of being.—By Isaac Sharpless, President of Haverford College.

saw him that the matter had been brought to the attention of the State Board of Health, and that prosecution for criminal negligence, both to the children and to the public would be instituted at once. Scarlet fever is a serious disease and kidney disease is likely to develop from the slightest exposure. My children, even with a high fever, have been leading an active outdoor life.

On Saturday I went to West Medway in a closed machine in company with a Boston specialist and took the children to a private hospital for infectious diseases under the care of eminent specialists, where they will remain until they are well. They will then come to my residence, 12 Middle street, Portsmouth.

JAPS TO BUILD RUSSIAN RAILWAY

Herald Sept. 9.—The Berliner Tageblatt says:

"The Russian government has concluded an agreement with the Japanese government whereby the latter undertakes to provide Russia with a daily supply of 50,000 shells from Sept. 1. It is also reported that Japanese engineers have been entrusted with the construction of a narrow gauge railway from Vladivostok to Irkutsk. This would serve more particularly for the transport of munitions."

TRY TO HOLD UP AUTOMOBILES

Mysterious Gang Worked
Near Biddeford Wednesday Evening.

Biddeford police and deputy sheriffs are hunting for six mysterious men who were attempting to hold up automobiles in the vicinity of the iron bridge near the town line between that city and Kennebunkport Wednesday evening.

The driver of a large touring car went to the police station in the early evening and informed Chief Thomas Stone that six men, three of them foreigners and roughly dressed, the other three fairly well dressed, attempted to detain his auto in that vicinity. One of the three well dressed men he said, carried part of an engineer's outfit, and another had a very powerful flashlight.

Captain Doyle and one of the officers of the Biddeford police force went some distance beyond the Biddeford city line in pursuit of these men and heard from an automobilist of a second attempted holdup, but were unable to strike the trail of the marauders. Deputy sheriffs from Biddeford and Kennebunkport were also informed of the presence of these men in this locality, and hastened to join in the search.

"THE LAW OF THE LAND."

Do you remember the sentry in "Iolanthe," who remarks in a very fine song as he paces his beat to and fro, "I think of things that would astonish you?" So modern audiences think of the most astonishing things. How a murderer feels when the police are on her track is one of the things you think about if you see "The Law of the Land," George Broadhurst's greatest success. Here is a well bred woman who, in obedience to the emotion which causes any animal to defend its young, kills her husband as he is about to beat his child with a horse whip.

This makes her a murderess, and if the law gets her it will either send her to prison for life or kill her. During three acts this woman exists in anticipation of the policeman's clutch. Her sufferings are brought home to everybody by the exceptional acting of Adelaide French in the part. Miss French better than most actresses knows how to convey emotion by natural and restrained methods.

"I don't think I ever thought much about a murderer's feelings before seeing 'The Law of the Land,'" writes a New York reviewer, "and it has taught me that our law has quite overlooked the difference between murderers who are cultured, refined and not likely to make manslaughter a regular custom, from the treatment accorded the low-brow, unshaven, drug-driven criminal who kills for purely brutal motives."

"Barrie, in 'The Legend of Leonora' tackles the problem of the nice lady murderer who kills to protect herself, but handles it very differently from 'The Law of the Land.' Leonora pushes a man out of a railway carriage window because he wouldn't shut it when told her little girl had a cold. She was acquitted by a judge and jury who approved of her personally."

"Mrs. Harding in 'The Law of the Land,' might not have fared so well if the police inspector had not covered up her crime. Suppose a good prosecuting attorney had explained her relationship with Morton, which she admitted in the first act, and told how Harding had been permitted to believe that little Bessie belonged to him for nine long years. But the thought is too horrible to contemplate."

"The Law of the Land," which has just completed a sold year's run at the 48th St. Theatre, New York, will be the offering at the Portsmouth Theatre this evening.

BRASS BUTTONS NO MORE

London, Sept. 9.—The Grenadiers and some of the other guard battalions are now giving up the brass buttons on their shoulder straps, and wearing instead the name of their regiment worked in cotton on cloth, as the men of the Royal Flying Corps have already done. The guards are also to have the brass buttons on their tunics replaced with bone buttons, and the practice may be extended throughout the army.

The soldiers will not be at all sorry as they have to expend a great deal of elbow grease on shining the brass buttons. The change is made, not because England is running short of brass, but because experience has shown that the metal shines in the sunlight and catches the eye of the enemy's snipers.

BOOST THE PRICE OF GASOLINE

Fourth Advance of a Penny a Gallon Brings It Up to 17 Cents.

The price of gasoline is still rising. The fourth advance since June announced yesterday has put the wholesale price at 17 cents a gallon.

The Standard Oil Company as usual takes the lead in the latest advance in the price of motor fuel and the other concerns followed its example. With gasoline 17 cents a gallon at wholesale, the garages are charging 19 and 20 cents at retail.

The wholesale price was dropped last fall from 14 to 13 cents and that figure stood through the winter and spring until the middle of June when one cent was added. Early in August the price was raised to 15 cents, about a week ago it was further increased to 16 cents, and this week it contained its climb to 17 cents.

The gasoline producers say that the reason for the continued increase in the price is due to the fact that the supply is not equal to the demand; that the very large number of motor cars, motor boats and other forms of gasoline consuming engines is using a tremendous quantity of fuel and that the companies are unable to produce it in sufficient quantities to meet the demand.

PLANNED ROBBERY OF WEALTHY WOMAN

Nichols about five weeks ago. Walters, according to the alleged confession, needed money and kept begging Tails to allow him and some other men to rob Mrs. Nichols. Tails consented on the promise that the gangsters would not be rough with the widow. Tails knew the butler and cook would be away last night and the robbery was arranged for then. The maid, Edith Langfeldt, said Tails was not in the plot and took it in earnest when she and the footman were bound and gagged. "I know they did not intend to do Mrs. Nichols any harm," is a statement attributed to Tails. "I guess she must have come upon them unexpectedly. I guess she dropped dead. When the men came down stairs and went out they passed the room where Edith and I were, but they said nothing about Mrs. Nichols being dead." The footman said the maid was the first to get herself free. She loosened him and then called the watchman on the block and notified the police of the robbery.

Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

NATIONS SURPRISED AT CZAR'S ACTIONS

Taking of Supreme Command of Army in Place of Nicholas Causing Great Speculation.

London, Sept. 8.—The exact meaning of the Czar's sensational assumption of the supreme command of the Russian armies is still the subject of speculation. The Grand Duke Nicholas Nikolaevich has been removed from his command in Europe and sent to take charge of the Russian forces in the Caucasus. Either the Grand Duke has been forced out by his many enemies at the Russian court, or he is a sacrifice to the complaints of a people by no means so courageous in the hour of disaster as they have been reported to be. The idea that Russia strikes the quickest wily to end the struggle for Constantinople is to press a vigorous campaign through Asia Minor might possibly explain the move, but the greater weight of probability rests with the assumption that the Grand Duke is either a scapegoat for national chagrin or a sacrifice to the military and court cabal of revenge which his own vigorous way of handling his officers has done much to create and inflame. Whatever the reason, the fact that the real command will now be in the hands of incompetence by commission, or the Czar undertakes to direct it, or entrusts it to a general of unknown fitness for supreme authority, is the vastly disturbing element in the situation. It is not necessary to dilate on the danger of swamping Russia in the middle of a stream. Just how the conducted in only a perfunctory manner for several months, as both of the nations involved had need of all available forces in other quarters. In event, however, of a determination to make a great drive through Asia Minor to assist the attack on the Dardanelles, this might become the most important field of operations. Indeed the Czar tells the Grand Duke that he needs his counsel on the southern front. It might be that Petrograd has become convinced that the Germans have shot their bolt in the east for the time being and that there is no chance of their penetrating Russia to any perilous degree. Great numbers of the Russian army it may be feared could be thrown into Turkey and place the Ottoman army before Constantinople and operating on Gallipoli between two fires.

Russians Hold Firmly

Petrograd, Sept. 8.—The War Office made public the following official communication:

"In the Riga district the situation is unchanged. South of Friedland the enemy has delivered since the night of the fifth energetic attacks on the River Lantze, which were repulsed. Between the Venta and the Wilja and on the Wilja and Nemen the situation is stationary. German attacks during the 6th against the district of Orany and the lower course of the Merschanika were repulsed. In the direction of Dwinsk and Sialencia there is nothing of importance to report.

"On the middle Nemen the enemy continued on the 5th and 6th to develop his operations from Grodno east and southeast. Further south our rear guards on the morning of the 6th had to sustain very obstinate fighting in the region of Wolkowysk and still farther southward on the whole front as far as Pruza.

"Between Hasselda and Aelma in the fighting on the line of Chomska-Droblezna we continued to hold the enemy's offensive.

"In the region of the Kovel-Sarany railroad our cavalry operated successfully against the enemy, carrying out a series of desperate charges, which were especially successful near the village of Voloch, in the region of Kovel and near the Kalki district, on the river Stry, where they captured three officers and 135 soldiers.

"On the right bank of the upper Stry since the morning of the 6th stubborn combats have been engaged in in the region of Radzivilow, between the rivers Slenowka and Ikwa. Under pressure of the enemy's forces, which were considerably superior numerically, our troops received an order to occupy a stronger position on the rivers Gorynia, Stibel and Ikwa.

"On the Serebriy the enemy, who generally is remaining passive, undertook on the 6th repeated attempts to open an offensive in the region of Tarnopol. These proved futile."

LABOR ADDRESS DELIVERED BY REV. MR. SCOTT

LABOR ADDRESS

Delivered Sunday night, Sept. 5, in the First Methodist Episcopal church by the pastor, Rev. F. J. Scott.

This is called "Labor Sunday." We gladly acknowledge the occasion, and so will give an address suitable to the time. There are two great statements that suggest themselves to us, both uttered by the Christ. One is the Golden Rule—"All things, therefore, whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them." And the other, the great classic of tenderness and sympathy towards earth's laborers—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

It would seem that labor is now coming conspicuously into its own. As a class it is today enjoying a greater, more respectful, and in some cases, more fearful recognition than possibly in any time in the past. I think there can hardly be any doubt that labor is today enjoying a greater proportion of the world's goods than ever before. In English speaking countries, and I believe in the world at large there has been in the last century a great advance in labor's privilege and prosperity. Slavery in English-speaking countries and in Russia has been abolished as an institution, and while there is still much wrong and need, which we all deplore, it seems to many, if not to all, that the laboring classes are enjoying more pleasure out of life than ever before. In this we rejoice.

But much remains to be accomplished. There are great wrongs yet to be righted, great injustices to be behoed, great justities to be established, child slavery in industrial institutions, the common people's thralldom to monopolistic prices, unjust wages out of which some men get fabulously rich, unsafe, unhealthy, and unclean conditions of life and labor while the employers that are responsible revel in luxury—these and other things are to be remedied and abolished as inherently and inhumanly unjust, and opposed to the will of Christ.

Unions and Trusts

Personally, I am in favor of men uniting, even in vast organizations. This seems to be a law of life. When capitalist bodies unite, we call the organization a trust; when laboring men unite we generally speak of their organization as a union. There is surely nothing inherently wrong in trusts or labor unions. To attempt to break them up seems like fighting against fate or the very laws of the universe. The great difficulty in connection with them both is that their great power is liable to abuse.

And that is the actual condition of the trusts. They abuse their great power. They make laws grievous to be borne; they monopolize, and heartlessly crowd out independent, and smaller competitors, they fix prices so as to give themselves unfair and unreasonable profit. They are not amenable to law. They defy it. They break it with impunity. The laws are often such that the trust is simply an impervious thing—it may be partially responsible to law, but the men composing the trust cannot be held legally responsible for the trust's misdoings. Shall these trusts be broken up? That might seem difficult, and even unattainable; contrary to the law of evolutionary progress. Possibly a better policy would be a better Government control.

If there is nothing inherently wrong in the existence of trusts, surely there can be nothing inherently wrong in the existence of labor unions. But the same difficulty exists in connection with labor unions as in the case of trusts, namely, the possible and actual abuse of their great power. Labor, having been oppressed, naturally becomes vicious and violent on many occasions, and obtaining some power, exercises that power tyrannically. In so acting it pleads necessity—and military necessity is as the overruling of small individual countries in the present European war—but economic necessity is a false justification. No necessity can justify wrong. Just as trusts crowd out and compel as labor unions compel by boycotts, threats, violence, persecution, the general public or the laboring men that do not belong to the unions. In such acts in fighting the trusts, labor adopts the methods and principles wide in the trusts it condemns.

Revolutionary

I would say that the labor organizations are often too violently revolutionary. In their literature, their meetings, their strikes, there is frequently, even normally, an atmosphere of violence and hatred against the capitalists, against laboring men who do not see eye to eye with them, and often acerbity against society at large. There is often the wildest, most unreasonable, most intemperate utterance. There is often the spirit of utter lawlessness. There is often the bitterest class spirit—apparently not the good of society at large, even including the capitalists, is sought, but the good only of the laboring classes or those belonging to the labor organizations. You find at times that spirit and those methods in all the strikes of labor societies from the I. W. O. to the Socialists. It is the militaristic spirit in the economic, industrial world, the spirit that depends upon the sword more than upon the power of reason and the ballot, that depends upon brute force more than upon the righteousness of a cause, and thus depending upon brute force, it tends to become brutal.

Labor and the Church

In too many instances, labor as an organization is violently opposed to all the present institutions of religion. It has many pretty things to say about Christ, but there is no doubt it often hates His church. For example, the London mob of laborers took off their hats and cheered when the name of Jesus Christ was mentioned, but hissed at the mention of the church. Why all this? Well, it is said, for one thing, that many capitalists belong to the church, and support it, and that the church, therefore, is not in reality a religious institution but an economic institution, maintained and controlled by capitalists in order to uphold for their profit the present economic system. There are some churches in which there are some capitalists, some few churches in Christendom that are composed practically entirely of very rich people—but very few such churches, very few indeed. Many rich men are honest, honorable, and noble. Many have worked up honestly from the lowest round of the ladder into wealth. Many from childhood have lived Christian lives. Shall the church exclude them because they are rich? This is true—that in the great majority of churches, the vast majority of members are from the laboring classes. This is also the case, that in the vast majority of churches, it is the money from the laboring or middle classes that supports the churches, rather than that from the rich. The Christian laboring man is generally more liberal in the cause of religion than the rich man. With them, the majority of the members of the church from the middle or laboring classes, and with the great bulk of the financial support coming from them, it surely is not reasonable to accuse the church of being a capitalistic institution.

It is sometimes said that the church does not take the part of the laboring man, that she does not cry out against the injustices done to him. That is far from correct. She does cry out, with voice vociferous, against the wrongs done to him, and by him, too. Today in this country tens of thousands of sermons are preached from Christian pulpits in honor of the laboring man, and in sympathy with many of his aims. His virtues, and thank God, his faults, are plainly told him—but often he does not like to hear his faults. The evils of an abusive, unjust capitalism are told, and the laboring man is encouraged to strive in a noble way for the betterment of conditions. Thousands upon thousands of our ministers, thousands of our best laymen, are studying earnestly these questions that "wrong" may be righted. But it is stated the church ought to champion some system. Well, what system? The I. W. O. says its system. The American Federation of Labor seems to "think" the church should blindly follow its leaders. The Socialists say the church ought to declare for Socialism. All right, but what degree or branch of Socialism? The fact is that the human mind has not yet devised a system that would obtain the adherence even of all laboring men themselves.

In what I am about to say I am neither condemning or commending this country's policy of neutrality in regard to the war in Europe—it may be good. It may be bad—but if there is a defense for it at all, it is that we ought to be and can be neutral only by digging down to deeper realities than the surface facts in regard to the war. And so it is very plain to me that the church of Christ ought to be essentially neutral in regard to the present industrial factions. How can the church recognize divisions, the class of capitalists and the class of laborers? Man and his one, and the church is founded upon the principle of democracy. To acknowledge divisions would be to go back upon her very charter. The church must plant herself upon this deeper unity, must accuse and commend both factions, must emphasize the great harmonizing principles of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, must lay stress upon the Golden Rule, the words of Christ, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them," must emphasize principles rather than rules—and the Golden Rule though called a rule is really a principle, and thus on this deeper neutrality harmonizing men's spirits she will eventually harmonize their economies. In this way can the church best serve the cause not of one class but of humanity, and thus serving the cause of humanity can she best serve the cause of every class.

Dependence on Organization

I sometimes think that laboring men do injury to themselves by depending too much for prosperity upon mass action, rather than upon their own individual action. Strikes and legislation will be sure to bring them prosperity, so it is thought, rather than individual work and cleverness. That doubtless is too often the spirit. Present opportunities are not seen, so much is said about the small man not having a chance that at last becomes to think he hasn't any. Opportunity for the individual is not closed yet. The capitalistic class is not closed yet. Many a man is entering it even today from the lower ranks. It is sometimes thought the rich get their money only by chance, inheritance, dishonesty, or oppression, but any large acquaintance with the rich will convince one that the majority of the rich obtain their riches by one or all of the following means—extra hard work, economy, thoroughness in work, superior business ability. I once talked to a large manufacturer, who was rich and getting richer. A young man in his employ was getting $25 a week, but he wanted more. He said to his employer, "You are buying bonds and real estate, and I am worth to you more than $25 a week." "Yes," said his employer, "I am making money. Now, if you think you are worth more than $25 a week, go and get it. When I was your age I was getting $17 a week. I thought I was worth more, and so I went out and got it. I started a business of my own, and throughout the years I got ahead. Now, if you are worth more than $25 a week, prove it, and go out and get it." The young man did not go, but never got. New businesses are forming all the time, but he did not have the initiative, the business dare, the business push, the business ability his employer had. Now possibly that young man will ensue the system, and join heartily a strike. Possibly strikes are sometimes necessary. In England there was a great strike for the "minimum wage." The International Correspondence Schools there got out a clever advertisement. They told of the many I. C. S. students who, instead of quitting work to get a minimum wage were studying hard at home and working too in the day to get a "maximum wage." And there are many maximum wages today waiting for the men who, by character, preparation, and superior ability are fitted for them.

Strong Drink

One of the greatest enemies the laboring man has is strong drink, or as Billy Sunday would say—"Booze." Are there not many men in Portsmouth who owe their "ill-luck" their low wage or no wage, their down-and-outness not to the faults of the economic system, but to booze? Are these not very poor men in Portsmouth who if they had saved the money they have spent for booze, and conservatively invested it had been rich today.

The Greatest Need is Good Men

We all know that many things are wrong, and I encourage organized labor to legitimately seek to make things better, to get the best system possible, but when that is got, the main thing is yet needed, namely, good, righteous men in the system. A good system with bad men in it may be even worse than a bad system with good men in it. We need good men worse than a good system. Good men are now and ever will be, the world's greatest requirement, and men are not made good by a system, but by Jesus Christ.

In all our seeking a better system, and a greater economic prosperity for the laboring man, we are very liable to think too exclusively about worldly good. Believe me, it is not the great good. "Oh," it may be said, "there you are, talking about the next world, and spiritual good. We want good things here, but you are making the mistake of your life if you put your main effort on what you call worldly good. Said one whose word is authority, one whom the laboring man often professes to love, 'A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.' Wealth and prosperity in a worldly sense do not always make rich. Sometimes they make one poorer than poverty does. Said the same one whom we just quoted—'Seek ye first—what?—worldly good, worldly things, prosperity?—Nay—He doesn't say you should not desire and seek these things within reason—but 'seek ye first the Kingdom of God,' its moralities, piety, sympathies, visions, certainties, and spiritualities, seek it first—and all these (temporal things) will be added unto you.'

No system can ever be devised which will take the weariness out of labor. Weariness comes not so much from physical strain as from the worry, perplexity, fear, and hopelessness of the worker—his lack of vision and joy. Many of you will die long before any new system can bring you great relief. So hear the words of Jesus—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" wonderful words these, of Christ! Men cannot give rest. They can lull, soothe, give opiates, sedatives, intoxicants, chemical amusements, but only Jesus Christ can give rest, and He gives it by giving hope, vision, joy and by lifting labor out of the sordidness of worldliness into the wealth, character, and largeness of other worldliness.

WESTERN DIVISION BOYS WIN GAME

The baseball team representing the Western division of the Atlantic Shore railway, having its headquarters at Kittery Point, defeated the Eastern division boys from the Town House in a fast game on the York Beach grounds Wednesday afternoon, winning by the score of 14 to 4.

The Eastern division nine made 11 hits, Mellor, their pitcher, striking out 14 men. Sixteen hits were recorded for the Western division boys, and seven runs were made in the first inning. Pitcher England struck out 15 men.

The features of the game was the pitching of England and the catching of a long fly in right field by Starkey in the 7th inning. Another feature was the home run made by Nutter in the fourth inning with two men on bases. Mellor, pitcher for the Eastern division, played a good game but received poor support at times.

This game between the two divisions of the electric road is an annual event and is looked forward to with much interest by all the employees. Last year the Western division was also victorious. The lineup follows:

Western Division—Locke, ss; Starkey, rf; Nollette, lb; England, p; Nutter, c; Cloutier, lb; Webber, cf; Roberts, 3b; Walker, lf; Witham, sub. Eastern Division—Mellor, p; Breen, ss; Huff, c; Hooper, lb; Fliske, 3b; Smery, lf; Ross, rf; Terry, cf; Drew, 2b.

CLAIM STEAMER FLEW THE BELGIAN FLAG

(Special to The Herald) Berlin, Sept. 9.—The Over-Seas News Agency has given out the following: "A Bremen newspaper point out that the British transport Southland, formerly torpedoed in Turkish waters, formerly was the Red Star liner Vaterland, Steamships of that line until the German occupation of Belgium, flew the Belgian flag, then they flew the American flag, and now one of them is suddenly changed into a British transport."

SHORTAGE OF SHIPS

London, Sept. 9.—Communications are now passing daily between the Colonial governments of Whitehall respecting the shortage of ships. Similar urgent requests have been received from both Australia and New Zealand and once more the utilization of German steamers has been recommended. Five of these vessels have already been allotted to the frozen meat trade, but the Premier of New Zealand states that there are still two million carcasses of frozen mutton awaiting shipment.

Large numbers of men have been thrown out of employment and serious loss is threatened by the impossible demands on the capacity of the cold storage. The butter trade of Australia and New Zealand is seriously affected, and disaster threatens the farmer there. The Board of Trade is arranging for the release of several steamers usually engaged in the Argentine trade to come to the relief of the Southern Colonies.

U. S. WILL INVESTIGATE

(Special to The Herald) Washington, Sept. 9.—Asst. Attorney Warren was this afternoon directed by Attorney General Gregory to make a complete investigation of the charges affecting James P. J. Archibald, the Washington war correspondent whose passports have been revoked by the state department because he acted as a messenger for the German and Austrian ambassadors. He will determine whether Archibald actually violated any of the laws of the U. S. and if he did, will present the evidence to a grand jury probably in New York.

MAY SELL HANDTUB.

Georgetown Firemen Want to Buy the T. W. Priest.

The Veteran Firemen of this city are planning on taking two handtubs, the Buckra and the T. W. Priest to the muster at Acenstary. It is understood that there is a possible chance of a sale of the T. W. Priest to the fire department of Georgetown, Mass., where a machine was lost some time ago in a fire. The object in bringing the tub to Amesbury is to allow the Georgetown people to give the machine a try-out and put her in against the other machines in the prize contest. The machine is the property of the Franklin Pierce Firemen's Association, and has been stored for some time in the old arsenal on South street.

THANKS THE MEN.

Superintendent John Bourke of the Portland division, Boston and Maine railroad has issued a complimentary letter to the firemen under his supervision for the most excellent work accomplished by one and all in the handling of trains on Labor Day. With heavy traffic all over the system and much extra duty for all concerned, not the slightest accident is reported along the line. This result is pleasing to the public as well as the railroad officials and the men of the train service and shows that the "Safety First" slogan was before the men at all times.

GERMAN SPY IN BRIDGEPORT

(Special to The Herald) Bridgeport, Sept. 6.—Germany's intricate system of espionage has invaded Bridgeport and the indirect results of the invasion are now causing one of the greatest diplomatic scandals since the beginning of the war in Europe. A representative of the International News Service definitely ascertained that confidential secretary of Dr. Constantine Dinnab, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador to this country, has been in this city within the past six weeks collecting data regarding the number of Hungarians employed in the plants now manufacturing war supplies for the allies. This secretary's name is John Skotthy. He is an agent of the Austro-Hungarian embassy, even making so bold as to state that he was here "on spy work."

ATTORNEY-GENERAL JOHN W. WESCOTT OF NEW JERSEY

Believes Nation Needs Votes For Women

The Attorney-General is a pronounced suffragist. He says: "If you want clean streets, pure water, food and market inspection, you must give women the vote. If you want good schools, adequate playgrounds and hygienic conditions for children—the growing citizens of the future—you must give women the vote. If you want to be the servant and not the master of society you must give women the vote. The more I see of the working of the government and social conditions of this State the more I am in favor of equal suffrage."
